Chicago State mourns loss of student

CHICAGO, Dec. 27, 2011 — It is with great sadness that Chicago State University mourns the death of a 19-year-old engineering studies student from Chicago. The student reportedly had been playing basketball in the Jacoby Dickens Center gymnasium where he collapsed.

Paramedics transported the student to Advocate Trinity Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

The CSU community’s thoughts are with the family in their time of sorrow. Counseling services are available to students, staff and family members.
